His Pa's Marvellous Escape

"Got any vasoline," said the boy to the groceryman, as he went in one cold morning, leaving the door open, and picked up a cigar stub that had been thrown down by the stove, and began to smoke it.

"Shut that door, dum you. Was you brought up in a saw-mill? You'll freeze every potato in the house. No, I haven't got any vasoline. What do you want of vasoline?" said the groceryman, as he set the syrup keg on a chair by the stove where it would thaw out.

"Want to rub it on pa's legs," said the boy, as he tried to draw smoke through the cigar stub.

"Why, what is the matter with your pa's legs? Rheumatiz?"

"Wuss nor rheumatiz," said the boy, as he threw away the cigar stub and drew some cider in a broken tea-cup. "Pa has got the worst looking hind legs you ever saw. You see, since there has been so many fires pa has got off scared, and he has bought three fire-escapes, made out of rope with knots in them, and he has been setting 'em every day now he could rescue the whole family in case of fire. He told us to be cool, whatever happened, and to rely on 'em. If the house got on fire we were all to rush to pa, and he would save us."

"Well, last night ma had to go to one of the neighbors, where they was going to have twins, and we didn't sleep much, because ma had to come home twice in the night to get saffron and an old flannel petticoat that I broke in when I was a kid, cause the people where ma went did not know as twins was on the bill of fare, and they only had flannel petticoats for one. Pa was cross at being kept awake, and told ma that when all the children in Milwaukee were born, and got grown up, she would take in her sign and not go around nights acting as usher to baby matinees. Pa says there ought to be a law that babies should arrive on the regular day trains and not wait for the midnight express. Well, pa he got asleep, and he slept till about eight o'clock in the morning, and the blinds were closed, and it was dark in his room, and I had waited for my breakfast till I was hungry as a wolf, and the girl told me to wake pa up, so I went up stairs, and I don't know what made me think of it, but I had some of this powder they make red fire with in the theater that me and my chum had the Fourth of July, and I put it in a wash dish in the bath room, and I touched it off and hollered fire. I was going to wake up pa and then tell him it was all right, and laugh at him. I guess there was too much fire, or I yelled too loud, cause pa jumped out of bed and grabbed a rope and rushed through the hall towards the back window, then goes out on the shed.

"I tried to say something, but pa ran over me and told me to save myself, and I got to the back window to tell him there was no fire just as he let himself out of the window. He had one end of the rope tied to the leg of the wash stand, and he was climbing down the back side of the shed by the kitchen, with nothing on but his night shirt, and he was the horriest object ever was, with his legs flying and trying to stick his toe nails into the rope and the side of the house. I don't think a man looks well in society with nothing but his night shirt on. I didn't blame the hired girls for being scared when they saw pa and his legs come down outside the window, and when they called I went down to the kitchen, and they said a crazy man with no clothes but a pillow case around his neck was trying to climb the window, and they run into the parlor, and I opened the door and let pa in the kitchen. He asked me if anybody else was saved; and then I told him there was no fire, and he must have dreamed he was in hell or somewhere. Well, pa was astonished and said he must be wrong in the head, and I left him thawing himself by the stove while I went after his pants, and his legs were badly chilled, but I guess nothing was froze. He lays it all to me, and says if she would stay at home and let people run their own baby shows, there would be more comfort in the house. Ma came in with a shawl over her head, and a bowl full of something that smelled frowsy, and after she had told us what the result of her visit was, she sent me after vasoline to rub pa's legs. Pa says he has demonstrated that if a man is cool and collected in case of fire, and goes deliberately at work to save himself, he will come out all right."

"Well, you are the smartest boy I ever heard of," said the groceryman. "But what about your pa's dancing a clog dance in church Sunday. The minister's hired girl was in here after some codfish yesterday morning, and she said the minister said your pa had scandalized the church in the worst way."

"Oh, he didn't dance in church. He was a little excited, that's all. You see, pa chews tobacco, and it pretty hard on him to sit all through the sermon without taking a chew, and he gets nervous. He always reaches around in his pistol pocket when they stand up to sing the last time and feels in his tobacco box and gets a chew, and puts it in his mouth when the minister pronounces the benediction, and then when they get out doors he is all ready to spit. He always does that. Well, my chum had a present on Christmas of a music box, just about as big as pa's tobacco box, and all you have to do is to touch a spring and it plays 'She's a Daisy, She's a Dumpling.' I borrowed it and put it in pa's pistol pocket where he keeps his tobacco box, and when the choir got most through singing pa reached his hand in his pocket and began to fumble around for a chew. He touched the spring, and just as everybody bowed their heads to receive the benediction, and it was so still you could hear a gum drop, the music box began to play, and in the stillness it sounded as loud as a church organ."

Well, I thought ma would sink. The minister heard it and looked at pa, and everybody looked at pa, too, and pa turned red, and the music box kept up 'She's a Daisy,' and the minister looked mad and said 'Amen' and the people began to put on their coats, and the minister told the deacon to hunt up the source of that worldly music, and they took pa into the room back of the pulpit and searched him, and ma says pa will have to be churched. They kept the music box, and I have got to carry in coal to get money enough to buy my chum a new music box. Well, I shall have to go and get that vasoline or pa's legs will suffer. Good day."—Peck's Sun.
